WEDNESDAY, : : MAY 1, 1878. WHEREIN HAS DEMOCRACY FAIL.

Whenever a new, ephemeral party springs upon the corruptions and failures of the old parties. Know-nothingism came into the world howling against the corruptions and violated pledges of the Whigs and Democrats, and the National party, with the shell of incubation upon its head, talks about the failure of the Radical and Democratic parties. We agree with the Nationals that those obscene birds who, in the name of Republicans, have polluted every department of the public service with venality, villainy and corruption, and scourged the people of the land to gratify their mordinate rapacity. But how can the Democratic party be accused of failure, when it has been out of power for the past seventeen years, while the Radicals were engaged in a carnival of corruption? Whenever the Democrats succeed Republicans, economy and reform follow just as naturally as day follows night. So soon as the Democrats secured a majority in the congressional crafs secured a majority in the congressional is healthful and invigorating, and the science house of representatives, the expenses of the of safety easily learned. It occurs to us that Samuel J. Tilden has been made the subject of much ingress. He seemed to think that it did not comport with the dignity of the high office an unseemly scramble for the place. Mr. Tilden would probably now be President had he visited Washington and played the part of a pothouse politician by bullying and blackguarding the conspirators. But his decency and patriotism was superior to his ambition, and he sacrificed his aspirations for the purpose of avoiding a collision which threatened civil war. If Governor the country at large owes Mr. Tilden a debt of gratitude for the patriotism and self-denial he exhibited under such trying circumstances." He was elected on the reform platform; to put down corruption, to give the south homerule, and tranquillity to the whole country. He conducted the canvass with admirable ability, and it is unjust to censure him for doing what was commended in him at the ing C. B. Travis's shoe factory and dwelling time civil war was imminent. MEMPHIS APPEAL if not, then let some one else be. Parties cannot afford to recognize the mere personal claims of any one. The Democracy did their whole duty to Mr. Tilden in 1876; they exhausted the obligation between them and him. If there was a failure of duty at all we do not say that it was at Mr. Tilden's door; we only assert that it was not at the Democracy's. There is no four years old debt of gratitude resting on the party in favor of Mr. Tilden, or any other man, and it will not do to assert that all the conditions of success center in the late Democratic Presidential candidate alone. If Mr. Tilden's friends desire to present his name on its naked merits in 1880, it cannot be forbidden them; but if the southern States, with their large, solid Democratic vote, persistently object to him, and bar his entry, it might be inviting certain disaster to disregard the pro-

A beginner, with limited enowledge of the science, and unbounded onfidence, is very hable to strike an unyieldng surface with not quite as much tenderess as a postage stamp does a letter. The bility does not consist so much of a friendly separation of the feet as it does in reuniting them. Awkward people should select, as the most fitting place for the skates, that part which is on the floor oftenest. The practical knowledge derived from the ceremony is alone worth the price of admission and tuiting the form tion. For instance, you can realize the force of the slang expression used when a man threatens to "set down on you," or can ap-preciate the reason why Kosciusko skrieked when freedom fell, or properly estimate the trite anticipation of an early spring. You will feel a contempt for the individual who volunteers the information that "things will be easier next fall." Astrology becomes a vision instead of a ogy becomes a vision instead of a study. An increased regard and valuation attaches to your feet and legs. They obtain recognition as very important valves in the engine of locomotion. The principles of unrightness in life are conveyed intelligibly, and you grab with reasonable avidity the motto, "Never go backward." A young lady in the first attempt to circle the glassy surface, does not present as bewitching an appearance as when seen in calm meditation at a counter, debating whether she shall select the green or the blue; nor does her fairy form glide with the graceful precision and elegance as on the promenade; quite the contrary. She looks as if pa had shied a half brick at her sweetheart, and she was in fearful doubt whether it hit him on the head or shin. It will be well for our city authorities to pause and consider their suicidal policy before it be too late for repentance. Let them heed the warning voice of the registrar and board of health, and instead of expending the appropriation Under Democratic rule everything is of the street department on new pavements and sidewalks, or other such works, which, part of the State. The State government is economically administered, and law and order any season of the year, address their everywhere prevails. The same economy and energies to the important work of draining and cleaning the streets and lanes of this city. But a few weeks remain for this drainage to be done, and we do most earnestly call upon all concerned to concenbe ready for the first of June next, if not earlier, to confront decomposition, disease, and death. After this period, let the removal der the rule of Ames. The Democrats have reduced taxes to one-half of the former rates, and the State government is a model of honand intelligent efforts of our working board health, in their diligent watching and timely distribution of select disinfecting agents, with the special blessing of a merciful God, to escape the perils of the next few soon as the Democrats get possession of the suffering. Dr. Chandler says: "Ten thousand preventable deaths take place in the city of New York annually, while we had two hundred and eighty thousand preventable cases of disease during the same period. Thousands of lives were thus needlessly sacrificed. The amount of two hundred and thirty-two thousand and forty-two dollars was absolutely necessary to carry on the work of the health department for 1878. The hospital for contagious diseases cost about thirty thousand dollars per year, while the work of vaccination cost some twenty thousand dollars. In Philadelphia it had necessitated an expenditure of sixteen million dollars. Dr. Chandler also contended that the health department could well use one hundred thousand dollars more than the sum called for in the provisional estimate. This money would come back tenfold to the inhabitants of New York. It would pay to have every house in the city thoroughly examined as to its sanitary condition, by competent inspectors. The department wanted more inspectors, particularly for the examination of milk. Over ten thousand dollars was spent per day in the metropolis for an inferior quality of milk, thousands of children Tilden had opposed a commission and demanded that the people should inaugurate him into the office to which they had elected him, he saw that he would hazard the peace ing impure milk.
